

MALACOLOGY

All the world
is in a snail!

Really?

Well,
the world's a
handed in/out
whirl, matter
through mind.

You do mean
the world is like a snail's
shell – my snails
don't whirl!

You're
always interrupting; it's in a snail –
to be slow
or not to be slow is not the question.
What is is what matter is, how
it effervesces,
swings.

And mind?

Well, that's wor-
ry's yen for misaligning
planetesimals,
making sure
the yarn stays
tangled and you can't find your teddybear.

But a snail –
won't it matter
it's so glan-

dular, all its biochemistries

on display?

That's what I
said from the beginning,
the world is in a snail.
